Ambassador expects release for Fattal

The best sign for hope yet in the two-year Iranian imprisonment of Elkins Park native Josh Fattal and friend Shane Bauer came yesterday when the Middle Eastern country's ambassador to Iraq said: "The general atmosphere is that they will be released."

Ambassador Hassan Dannaie Fir told the Associated Press in an interview, "We hope and expect that very soon they will be released." He mentioned well-known sympathy in Muslim countries for pardons during the holy month of Ramadan.

His statements are consistent with those made last Sunday by attorney Masoud Shafii, who represents both Americans, after the prisoners had a short trial in front of a Tehran judge.

Shafii said that he hoped the 29-year-olds would be found innocent within a week of the trial or would be released on time served for the last two years. They were arrested while hiking on the Iraq-Iran border on July 31, 2009, and charged with espionage.

Moveable 'parklet' comes into U. City

- Unusual boardwalk-style scene is the first of its kind in Philadelphia
- These popular attractions already exist in cities such as San Fransisco

Trash cans and folding chairs aren't the only things taking up Philadelphia parking spaces anymore.

The University City District and Mayor's Office of Transportation and Utilities unveiled a moveable mini park, known as a parklet, yesterday on 43rd Street just north of Baltimore.

The 40-by-6 oasis sits in front of the Green Line Cafe. "We wanted to put it in front of a natural gathering spot, so we figured the coffee shop was a good place that would attract people," said Deputy Mayor Rina Cutler, who called the pilot project the "front porch" of the community.

University City District Planning Director Prema Gupta got the idea when she visited her parents in California's Bay Area. "I literally stumbled [onto] one with my dad," she said. "It's something that can be done quickly and efficiently almost anywhere there is a pedestrian need."

Some area residents don't know what to make of the parklet. "I think it's cool, but I bet if you sit out there for long enough, someone will tell you to move," said Dale Bickerstaff of 49th Street. "A whole lot of people won't use it because they think it's part of the coffee shop and you have to buy something."

The Green Line will maintain the space through October, taking in the furniture at night. The University City District already has two additional parklets built by Bill Curran Design and hopes to install them soon. If successful, the city will extend the project to other neighborhoods.

The project's $10,000 price tag is financed by a grant from the William Penn foundation.

Traffic island

Daniel Johanes, an employee of the pizza shop across the street, is concerned about traffic because the parklet juts out into the street, giving cars a tighter berth. "It's kind of dangerous," he said. "At least 10 to 15 cars a day come down Larchwood and turn onto 43rd Street the wrong way. They need to have some kind of warning."

During the ribbon-cutting, a beverage truck attempted the turn and became stuck, backing up and ultimately pulling onto the corner to complete the delivery.

"Parklets exist in San Francisco and New York City, and they've never had anyone hit them," Cutler said. METRO/AW

Waterfront site gets attention

CENTER CITY. Nearly 12 acres of prime real estate next to Festival Pier on the Delaware River is the newest center of riverfront development, according to website PlanPhilly.

The site of a former city garbage incinerator off Delaware Avenue that now serves as a parking lot for concerts and festivals would eventually become a mixed-use development that private investment could support, officials said recently, according to PlanPhilly.

Body found in Del. River

HOLMESBURG. Police are investigating a body found in the Delaware River in Northeast Philadelphia Wednesday evening.

Authorities pulled the body of a 52-year-old white male from the river near the 5100 block of Linden Avenue around 7:15 p.m. and took him to the Medical Examiner's office.

The man's identity has not been released because the incident is being treated as a possible suicide. AW/METRO

In the news

Six attacks linked in Society Hill

The suspect in two attacks on women in Society Hill has been charged in four more similar incidents that occurred around the same time. Willie Wyche, 39, is now charged with robbery and assault for six cases taking place between June 25 and July 16.

Janet wants Philly's best '20 under 20'

Pop star plays Tower Theater Monday night She's traveling around country on tour, engaging top youth

Nominations

The public can nominate young people for Jackson's "20 under 20" at the singer's website, www.janetjackson.com.

- Those chosen will receive two free tickets to the show and a chance to meet with the star after the show.
- The concert will be 8 p.m. Monday at the Tower Theater, Upper Darby.

Janet Jackson is mixing it up during her "Number Ones: Up Close and Personal" tour, which comes to the Tower Theater on Monday. She has opted out of the big stadiums, special effects and pyrotechnics, instead going back to her roots to celebrate three decades of pop music-making and not one moment of wardrobe malfunction.

"Special effects are not what this tour is all about anyway. It is about me and the audience," Jackson told Metro. "I love performing in more intimate venues because I can look out and see all the faces of everyone in the theater. It has been great and I get so much energy from the fans."

"I am looking forward to meeting up to 20 young leaders in Philadelphia."
JANET JACKSON

As a nod to the younger generation, she will recognize young community leaders. "I am looking forward to meeting up to 20 young leaders in Philadelphia," said Jackson. We haven't selected them all yet so I hope everyone will nominate the kids that are changing your city in amazing ways."

Two years after the death of her brother, Jackson says she "still misses [him] every day." She'll be performing a virtual duet with Michael during the concert.

Wall Street plunges in worst selloff in two years

Busiest day in more than a year as investors dump shares Worries over economy taking their toll

BRENDAN MCDERMID/REUTERS

Thursday wasn't a good day on the floor of the New York Stock Exchange.

Investors fled Wall Street in the worst stock-market sell-off since the depths of the Great Recession in early 2009 in what has turned into a full-fledged correction.

The Dow and the S&P tumbled more than 4 percent Thursday, and the Nasdaq lost 5 percent on fear the United States is staring at another recession and that Europe's sovereign debt crisis is swallowing two of its largest economies.

Analysts predicted further losses even though stocks have fallen on nine of the last 10 days. Two-year Treasury yields fell to a record low as investors sought safety in short-term government bonds.

The S&P 500's drop puts it more than 10 percent below its April 29 high, considered a correction. More than 13 billion shares changed hands, the busiest trading day in more than a year. Decliners beat advancers on the New York Stock Exchange by about 19 to 1.

"People are throwing in the towel because they can't find relief on any front."
MILTON EZRATI, MARKET STRATEGIST AT LORD ABBETT CO.

The market's recent malaise stems from a number of factors.

U.S. economic data has worsened, suggesting slowing growth from an already sluggish pace in the first half. Europe's sovereign debt crisis has defied remedies and threatens to engulf large euro-zone economies Spain and Italy.

"The debt troubles in Europe, especially with the yields on Italian and Spanish government bonds soaring, are making investors gather as much liquidity as possible," said Stephen Massocca, managing director of Wedbush Morgan in San Francisco. REUTERS

Gold falls from record

Gold recoiled from a record high in heavy volume Thursday.

During a global stock-market sell-off, safe-haven buying of gold quickly gave way to liquidation as investors scrambled to meet margins calls.

In an abrupt midday reversal, gold slid as much as $40 from an all-time high. This surprised some traders who had expected gold to extend its record run. REUTERS

Gun scare at Va. Tech, site of 2007 massacre

WASHINGTON. Authorities reopened the Virginia Tech campus after an hours-long lockdown on Thursday following a report of a gunman at the university where 32 people were killed in a mass shooting in 2007.

"The campus alert is lifted. There will continue to be a large police presence on campus today," the school said on its website more than five hours after the lockdown was ordered.

It said police have not discovered any additional information about a person possibly carrying a weapon. REUTERS

TOM FOREMAN
POLITICAL CORRESPONDENT FOR CNN

IN DC, IT'S A MADHOUSE

The apes are back. The latest offering in the "Planet of the Apes" genre is swinging into movie theaters this weekend, and I couldn't be happier.

Obviously, the first reason is that it gives me an excuse to dust off my Roddy McDowall impersonation. But the second is just as compelling: After weeks of watching members of Congress bare their teeth, pound their chests and break the furniture, I'm looking forward to the comfort of a fictional collapse of civilization.

And why not? The reality of our situation, especially after this past week, is far scarier than an invasion of horse-riding gorillas with nets and rifles.

Our economy remains a wreck. The grease fire of the deficit was beaten down before it could consume the kitchen, but it is still lashing at the fire blanket and ready to explode again at a moment's notice.

The markets have been falling faster than D.B. Cooper, — and also, by the way, taking our cash with them. Confidence in our elected leaders has crumbled to dust. Gridlock used to describe the traffic in D.C.; now it is an overall state of being. President Obama seems unable to break through. Leaders in both parties are as hapless as my grandmother on a skateboard.

I've been asking political types lately how this came to be, and they all seem as puzzled as Charlton Heston and his fellow astronauts in the original Apes film when they realized they had landed on a planet much like Earth, only with gibbons inexplicably running the show. These politicos agree that things are not as they should be in D.C., but they feel powerless to fix the situation. So they point fingers at each other and hurl accusations, and nothing changes.

To borrow a line from the film series: It's a madhouse. And it is too much to contemplate.

So I'm going to the movies this weekend. I'm going to buy my popcorn, grab a soda and curl up in the darkness to watch the planet fall under the domination of an entirely different species. Hey, a boy can dream, can't he?

Study: Eating healthy food costs more money

Eating healthier food can add almost 10 percent to the average American's food bill — and that's just to boost a single nutrient like potassium.

Researchers from the University of Washington looked at the economic impact of following new U.S. dietary guidelines, which recommend eating more potassium, dietary fiber, vitamin D and calcium. They also call for avoiding saturated fat and added sugar.

The diet recommendations try to fight rising rates of obesity in the United States, where more than one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight. But the study's findings underline some of the obstacles to adopting new habits.

$4K Amount Americans spend on food each year, according to the Department of Agriculture.

In an article in Health Affairs published on Thursday, the researchers reported that eating more potassium — the most expensive of the four nutrients — can add $380 to the average person's yearly food costs. The study also found that those with higher average incomes were more likely to eat healthier foods.

At the same time, getting more calories from saturated fat and sugar reduces overall food costs, the report showed. REUTERS

▶ Morgan is under scrutiny in phone-hacking scandal.

Lawmakers want to talk to Piers about hacking

British lawmakers called Thursday for CNN host and former tabloid editor Piers Morgan to return to his native Britain to answer questions about phone-hacking after allegations made by the ex-wife of former Beatle Paul McCartney.

The claim by Heather Mills that a journalist had listened to voicemail messages on her mobile phone has added fuel to the flames of a scandal that has engulfed Rupert Murdoch's News Corp. empire and much of the British establishment.

In an interview with the BBC Wednesday, Mills said a journalist for Trinity Mirror, owner of the Daily Mirror tabloid, had confronted her with details of a message.

She said the journalist — who was not Morgan — had admitted hacking her phone. Morgan was the editor of the Mirror at the time. REUTERS

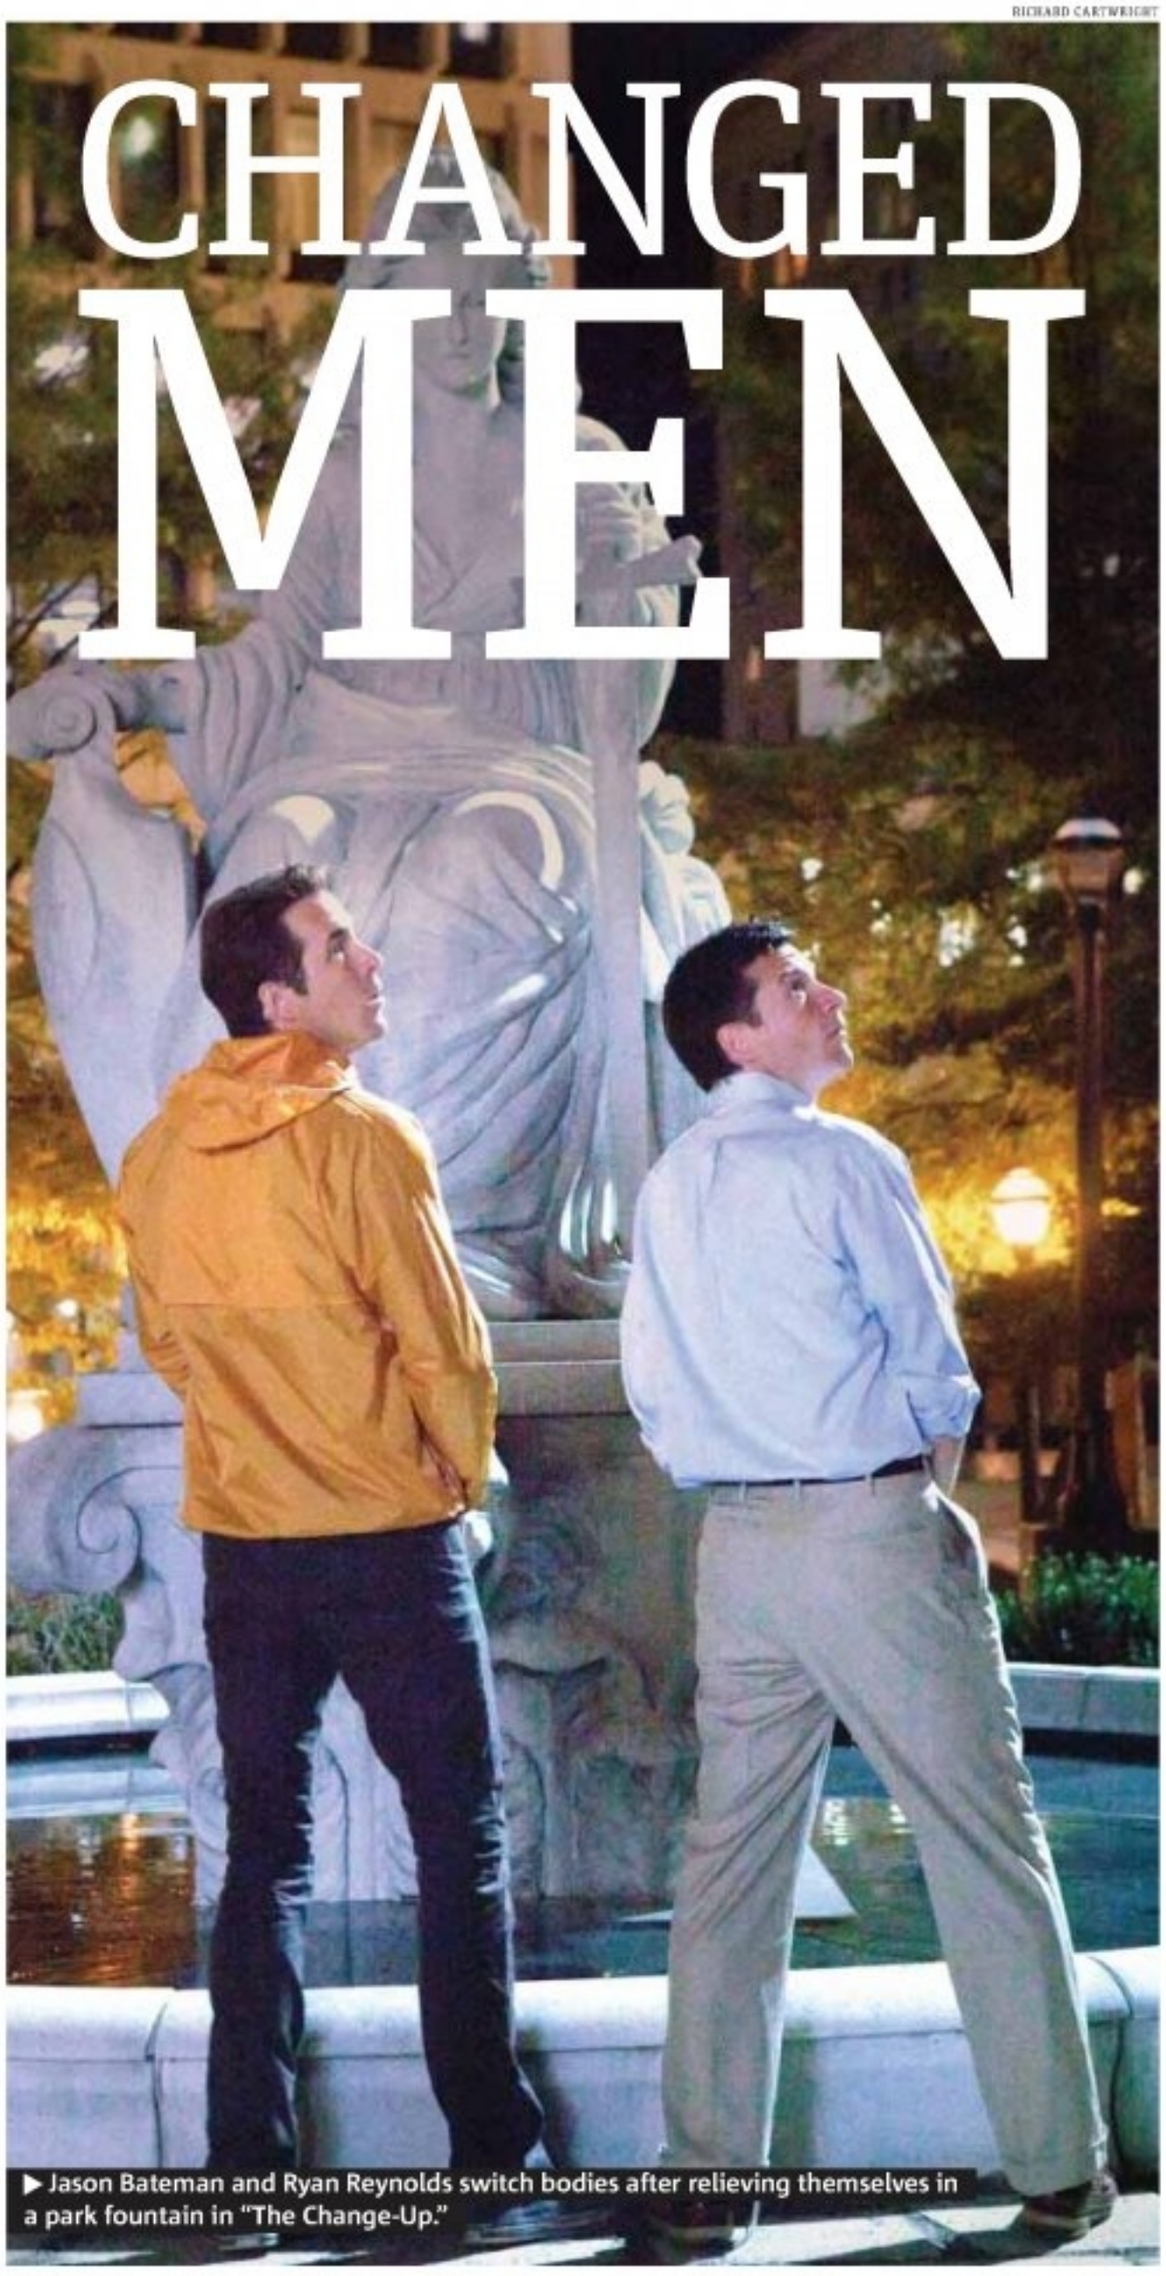
CHANGED MEN

RICHARD CARTWRIGHT



▶ Jason Bateman and Ryan Reynolds switch bodies after relieving themselves in a park fountain in "The Change-Up."

Ryan Reynolds and Jason Bateman, stars of 'The Change-Up,' are older and wiser 'There was a time in my life when I'd wake up in a shallow pool of my own fluid, but those days are over,' says Reynolds. 'I eat breakfast now, not ketchup. It's different now.'

Playing best friends who magically switch bodies in "The Change-Up," real-life friends Ryan Reynolds and Jason Bateman have had plenty of time to think about what they'd do if they found themselves in that situation in real life. "I'd do terrible things to his body," Reynolds admits. Bateman, not batting an eye, finishes the thought for him: "And to my wife. He's been after my wife for years." To which Reynolds nods solemnly, adding, "Years, years. And she will be mine."

Kidding (we hope) aside, the two friends were excited about the idea of working off each other's quirks. In the film, Bateman's straitlaced family man finds himself navigating the world of a bachelor, while Reynolds' barely employed actor takes on a wife and kids and a rough week at work as a lawyer.

But while they may seem perfect for their respective roles, the guys insist they didn't really mind who played which role. In fact, Reynolds doesn't think he's any more like one character than the other. "I've got to say I'm somewhere in the middle," he says. "There was a time in my life when I'd wake up mornings in a shallow pool of my own fluid, but those days are over. I eat breakfast now, not ketchup. It's different now."

Bateman, though, definitely related to the husband and father he plays on screen, even if he was concerned it might not fit with the kind of raunchy comedy they were going for. "You look at the domestic part of this film and you think, is that going to soften the R-rating?" he admits. "Because when you buy a ticket to an R-rated film, you want R-rated comedy."

"The Change-Up" is most definitely R-rated, and the two actors are more than proud of it.

"You want to go in there, have a good time, laugh your ass off, maybe get offended a couple of times and get the hell out," Bateman says. "We're not trying to win Oscars here or teach anybody any lessons."

"I'd do terrible things to his body."

▶ Andy Serkis and some great CGI breathe life into Caesar, the leader of the apes.

How the 'Apes' franchise evolved

We know what you're thinking: Another 'Planet of the Apes' movie seems like a bad idea But this prequel succeeds on almost every level

"Too soon! Dear God, way too soon," was what many of us were thinking when it was announced that there would be a prequel to the classic 1960s sci-fi film "Planet of the Apes." After Tim Burton's disastrous attempt to remake the franchise with Mark Wahlberg filling the shoes of Charlton Heston in 2001, collective wisdom dictated that the talking apes franchise should not be revisited until we could stop making Marky Mark and the Funky Bunch jokes (as in, never).

But the pleasant surprise is that Rupert Wyatt's smart origin story about how apes first wrestled world domination away from humans is something that Dr. Zaius can be proud of. James Franco, as a brilliant doctor and scientist, is chasing the dream of developing a drug to cure Alzheimer's for the sake of his ailing father, played by John Lithgow. In testing the drug on apes, he discovers the drug's off-label ability to elevate the intelligence of the animals.

What this "Apes" film has that the Burton remake lacked is a clever story that, while sentimental at times, doesn't impatiently yank on the heartstrings. This is helped of course by the stars of the show, the apes themselves, which have come a long way from the barely animated rubber-masked actors of the first films. Using technology first pioneered by James Cameron with "Avatar," Wyatt's CGI apes are a lifetime away from their campy predecessors.

The best surprise of all is that this film leaves you hoping that there will be a sequel to the prequel.

On Fridays, Dorothy will post the best tweets she received during the week. You can always let her know what you think — good or bad — at @dorothyatmetro.

This week, readers let me in on their own dental drama (it's been a bad week for me and the ol' chompers, folks) and a few readers chime in on how I can look as good as Sandra Bullock at 47.

▶ @monicaatmetro My dentist has outlawed all red wine that's not sipped through a straw.

▶ @v0xtheriot i had to take out 4 wisdom teeth + 2 more on the same day. I looked like a chipmunk for a week

▶ @TBWhitehurst had to take 3 days off cuz I had a huge gap in mouth and they could not put a temporary. good thing I had sick leave.

▶ @morgancora I drank all the fluoride and puked ON my dentist when I was 6.

▶ @TraOsbourne Braces

▶ @ paulzander unlimited money to spend on plastic surgery. Simple really.

▶ @ dramaqueene Heck, what do I do to look like @Ruth_A_Buzzi at 75?

Marriage advice only Ice-T and Coco could offer

Stars like Alexander Skarsgard, Larry David and Harry Shum, Jr. came out Wednesday night to fete the Sheepdogs, the winners of Rolling Stone magazine's "Do You Wanna Be a Rock & Roll Star?" contest, at the Empire Hotel rooftop. The fan-voted contest awarded the Sheepdogs with a coveted cover story in the Aug. 18 edition of Rolling Stone and a recording deal with Atlantic Records.

▶ Ice-T and Coco on Wednesday

We spied everyone's favorite new reality TV couple, Ice-T and Coco, at the party and had to ask: How do they keep their marriage hot? Ever the lady, Coco cited communication as key as she gave her quite demure answer:

"I talk to him every single day," she told Metro. "And whether it's a problem or not, I bring it up to him, even if it starts a little tiff, I don't care, at least it's out of my mind. What women like to do is hold things in, and you're gonna be a very unhappy person if you just hold things in. So get it out."

Ice, on the other hand, had a different opinion on what keeps their relationship rolling: "Jungle sex," he told us.

Prime time for Kardashian wedding day

PHOTOS: GETTY IMAGES

A bit fatigued by wedding season? Well, break out the No-Doz as the biggest wedding the world has ever seen (since Prince William and Duchess Kate, of course) is about to hit the airwaves! Entertainment Weekly reports that the wedding between Kim Kardashian and her Cro-Magnon fiance Kris Humphries is being set up by E! as a two-night special — meaning four hours of prime-time viewing.

The couple plan to swap vows on Saturday, Aug. 20, but E! will air "Kim Kardashian's Fairytale Wedding: A Kardashian Event" on Sunday, Oct. 9, at 8 p.m and Monday, Oct. 10, at 9 p.m.

▶ And you thought her butt was big — just wait for her wedding!

Four hours. That's a lot of time to devote to people you don't even know, America. But then again, you won't be forced to do the Electric Slide. So maybe it's a toss up?

Talking points

Osbourne dishes it out

Kelly Osbourne doesn't mince words when it comes to Christina Aguilera. On a recent episode of E!'s "Fashion Police," while mocking Aguilera's outfit, Osbourne unloaded. "Maybe she is just becoming the fat bitch she was born to be," Osbourne said. The anger apparently comes from personal history: "She called me fat for so many f—ing years. So you know what? F— you! You're fat, too."

Paltrow: I'm not prim!

Gwyneth Paltrow is looking to shake up her image. "It's good to shock people who think of me as the prim Gwyneth Paltrow," she tells Elle magazine. One way she's looking to do that, under the guidance of some very famous friends, is by exploring a music career. "Beyonce Knowles and Jay-Z — they think that I should just go do it by myself. That I should go in a studio and see what happens," she says. "And if it's good, do it. And if it's not, don't. So that's probably what I'll do."

Vergara not an early bird

Though she's already a parent, "Modern Family" star Sofia Vergara isn't as thrilled about doing the whole pregnancy thing again, she tells Redbook magazine. "When I had [my son] Manolo, I was 19, and I had the energy for everything," he says. "My boyfriend now wants to have kids, and I don't even want to think about it. I would have to get into that mind-set again, the waking up early."

Jason Statham moves in

Jason Statham is looking to settle down, and he's found just the place. The "Transporter" star purchased Ben Stiller's $11.5 million Hollywood Hills home, according to the Hollywood Reporter. The 10-bedroom Mediterranean-style home with guest house near the Hollywood Bowl was originally listed for $12.5 million.

Death Cab flirt with disaster

Ben Gibbard is relaxing at home in Los Angeles in between touring bouts for Death Cab for Cutie's liltingly lovely (with the odd spot of trademark anxiousness) new album, "Codes and Keys." The break is not without incident, though.

As Gibbard puts it, "It was punctuated by the odd show in Ottawa that didn't happen."

That's right: the show where the stage collapsed as Cheap Trick played!

"We were supposed to be playing after Cheap Trick," continues Gibbard, who married actress and chanteuse Zooey Deschanel in 2010 and moved from his native state, Washington, to L.A. "We were 30 yards away when the stage collapsed; it happened right in front of us. It was absolutely terrifying. It's an unfortunate analogy that gets made at this point in our society whenever you see something unbelievable. But it was like watching a disaster movie. It was like watching a terrible movie. I was actually wondering this morning: If it were the 18th century, how would you describe it to a friend? Would you say it was like a disaster play? Like before TV, would it be a disaster novel?"

Perhaps the viewer would be inspired to write an account? Perhaps turn it into song (hint, hint)?

"That's probably what would happen," he agrees.

To play or not to play

"All of our equipment is still on the stage, pending the investigation," says Gibbard. "It looks like that is all getting squared away. Number one, it is a miracle no one was killed. It's an even larger miracle that a couple of people escaped with relatively minor injuries. At this stage, I can move onto worrying about whether our equipment is OK."

▶ A music video from the band Yuck has plenty of nudity.

Now that music videos don't get much play on TV, they're letting loose on the Internet Why indie rock videos are suddenly very NSFW

There's a new four-letter word in indie rock. With increasing frequency, videos are popping up online with the letters NSFW next to their listings. For the uninitiated, this stands for Not Safe For Work, which is a warning that you probably don't want your co-workers to catch you watching something like a few hundred nude bikers cavorting with Flaming Lips frontman Wayne Coyne, who is also nude as he sings "Watching the Planets."

"Well I think it depends on where you work," jokes Coyne before considering his honest answer. "What we do was always geared toward hip adults anyways — we're not really trying to make kids' videos — but when you're stuck with the rules of TV, that would take an element of the ridiculous out of it. … No one is telling us what to do anymore, so let's not worry about it."

Quoted

"It's awesome that you can basically do whatever the f— you want on the Internet right now."
MICHAEL REICH

Michael Reich, who has directed several NSFW videos, mostly for the band Yuck, seems to share Coyne's sentiment.

"It's awesome that you can basically do whatever the f— you want on the Internet right now," he says.

Zac Pennington, singer from Parenthetical Girls, says he was intrigued by the racy videos he was seeing his peers make, which led to the single-shot video in which Pennington is shown singing while lying in bed. The screen only shows the top portion of his naked body, while a woman offscreen works on the lower portion. The song is called "The Pornographer."

"We'd been sort of fascinated with the recent glut of 'NSFW' music videos ourselves — wondering how far otherwise innocuous indie rock bands were from becoming propagators of outright pornography," he says. "'The Pornographer' video was in some ways a comment on the phenomenon, removing the barrier between band member and actual pornographer."

Pennington says that while it's new for these "otherwise innocuous" groups to express themselves in such an uncensored manner, it is a successful selling point reminiscent of an earlier brand.

"I think what the NSFW label suggests at this point is similar to the implied danger that a parental advisory once held," he says. "It's as much a means of selling the product to a certain audience as it is a detractor to another."

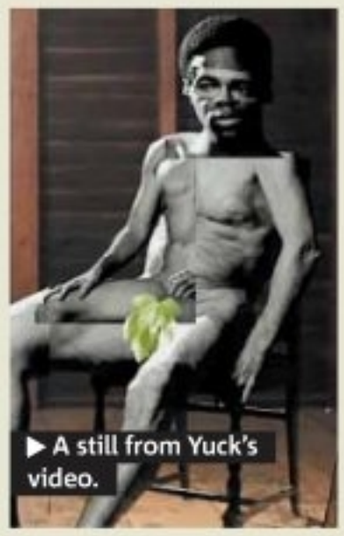
▶ The Flaming Lips music video for "Watching the Planets" depicts naked frolicking in the park.

A time and a scandalous place



▶ A still from Yuck's video.

Reich says bands have sought him out to direct his videos because of his previous NSFW vids, but he doesn't believe in doing nude or crude just for the sake of it.

"I think you should come up with the idea — and if it happens to be a little scandalous or not safe for work, that's cool," he says. "But you can't seek out shock value because that's all it is. It's just gratuitous and shock."

How much more shocking does Reich think it will become?

"I think it's a trend that will kind of die down a little bit," he muses, "just because it's so oversaturated in the past couple of months."

Jill Scott is No. 1 in 'The Sun'

The Philly native on returning to music, celebrating her Block Party tour and 'the best time' of her career

Jill Scott credits old-fashioned home training with keeping her ego in check.

"My grandmother Blue taught me very early to not get involved in that mentality where you are put on a pedestal," she says. "Because people on pedestals fall, and fall hard."

After her own successful HBO series and starring in a Tyler Perry movie or two, the Grammy winner might be putting those skills to use more than ever now. She's back to her first love, music, scoring her first No. 1 album with her new set, "Light of the Sun." Now as the headliner of the Jill Scott Block Party, she's bringing her soulful sound back to her hometown.

This show is more than just a concert. It feels like a big event.

It's a whole bunch of fun with live musicians and great vocalists. I wanted to hear Stokely (of opening act Mint Condition) and Anthony Hamilton sing every night. Also, I really enjoy hip-hop and nobody is better than DJ Jazzy Jeff. I reached out to him, and that's so full circle. He's the one who was instrumental in putting me out in the first place. And then who's better to keep the party live than Dougie Fresh?

Why did you go with the Block Party concept?

A block party is always a good time. Not a lot of pretense. You're going to see the people in your community and have fun. I like that kind of energy.

What do you think the tone of this new record is?

Freedom. We didn't know what we were going to do. It just happened. It's been the best time of my career. I know how I really enjoy creating. I don't want to be in an environment where it's "Let's make hits." What's that? That's work. That's an agenda. This is music.

Scott's slim secrets

A lot has changed for Scott over the past few years. A new label deal and a 60-pound weight loss were all parts of a plan to set a good example for her toddler.

"I want to be around for him," she says. "There's something about having a son particularly that put another level of fire under my bones. I just want to show him how to do the best you can. That's a good early lesson for him from me. I want him to be proud."

This summer, you're going gourmet on your dogs

Sharkey

Joshua Sharkey, co-owner and chef of Bark Hot Dogs in Brooklyn, New York, serves up mouthwatering artisanal hot dogs. Here, he shows us how to jazz up the standard dog. Your grill just got hotter.

Toast the bun!
"There should be a contrast of texture between the bread and the sausage so that you can taste and appreciate both. By toasting the bun — we toast ours with a little butter — you can create a nice crust on the outside of the bread that keeps it moist with a nice bite."

Some meat for your meat
"We find that adding a little extra meat to your already-meaty experience makes for an amped-up version of the classic hot dog. We like to add braised meat or porky baked beans on top with a little heat from mustard or horseradish or a spicy sauce."

Go crazy with seasonings
"If you plan to make a topping from scratch, make sure it's heavily seasoned. [It] should taste a little too strong on [its] own. If these condiments don't have enough acid, sweetness and salt, the hot dog and bun will soak up a lot of that flavor, yielding a flat-tasting condiment. Vinegar and sugar are your best friends."

Cook to perfection
"We like to cook our dogs very slowly at first, with a little bit of canola oil to soften the casings. Afterward, just before we serve them, we cook them on high heat to get a nice, crispy outer surface."

Slaw: Not just a side
"I'm from the south, and down there we like slaw on everything. At Bark, we thought it only natural to have a hot dog topped with our pickle juice-laced coleslaw. It's tangy [and] savory and has a nice bite to it."

Hi Mrs. Dorothy Robinson! First I want apologize with you for my English because is very bad! I'm an Italian soldier and a student. I study Japanese and English. I wrote this e-mail for tell you my many compliments because you're the best journalist. I read your articles on Metro for increase my English and you're helping me so much. I start to read Metro for this reason and your work impressed me a lot. Why your book isn't published in Italy? I'd like to read it. My country will be always behind in everything. I hope I made not waste you too much time with this e-mail! I renew my compliments to you. Good work!

MARIANO BELLINO, VIA E-MAIL

Reader 'solves the debt crisis'

If you have enough to retire comfortably, or even extravagantly, no social security for you. If you can afford private health insurance, no medicare or medicaid for you. If you earn in a tax refund what some people earn in a year, no refund for you. If you're not a citizen, no unemployment for you. If you're milking the system, your days are numbered. If you've served in the military, you are the exception. If you work for the government, you are not the exception. Be patriotic and realize when enough money is enough money. You can't take it with you when you die.

SPENCER COSGROVE, VIA E-MAIL

Goodbye and good riddance

Tea Partiers and other believers in small government should move to Somalia. The government there is infinitely small; and without being dragged down by taxes, the economy must surely be booming.

JAKE SLOSAR, VIA E-MAIL

Free speech is what it's about

In the debt ceiling standoff, Tea Party Republicans took brinksmanship to a level formerly reserved for international hostilities. That provoked heated condemnation, including comparison to hostage-taking terrorists. Predictably, we're being subjected to the proverbial half-pint thunderstorm over it. Grow a thicker skin, folks. I support the right of Tea Party protesters to say the horrible stuff they do. Let's uphold free speech for both sides.

Horoscope

♌ Leo July 23-Aug. 22. Find that quiet corner free from all outside interference to work out a complicated or tedious problem that's been bothering you lately. You'll find the answer.

♍ Virgo Aug. 23-Sept. 22. You should be able to use to your advantage something beneficial that develops regarding an endeavor in which you're presently involved. It will elevate your hopes and expectations.

♎ Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23. Although it is not unusual for you, your qualities of kindness and consideration for others will be very much in evidence to all with whom you're involved, making you extremely popular.

♏ Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22. Any logical evaluations you get are likely to be seasoned with a bit of sensitivity, giving you added wisdom, not just good ideas. People won't be able to help taking you seriously.

♐ Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21. Most things you take on will work out extremely well for you because you'll instinctively know how to utilize whatever resources you have at your disposal with great efficacy.

♓ Pisces Feb. 20-March 20. If there is some kind of assignment or personal project you would like to reorganize and get off to a fresh start, you won't find a better day to do so.

♉ Taurus April 20-May 20. Because you're endowed with some impressively strong powers of concentration, use them constructively to sort out a project that you've been finding confusing and difficult.

♊ Gemini May 21-June 20. Although you're better known for rolling the dice rather than for being practical, you won't do anything that isn't well thought out when it comes to your commercial interests.

♋ Cancer June 21-July 22. It could be one of those rare days when you'll be able to do most anything you want without too much outside interference. Why not focus your efforts on advancing a personal aim?

Patterson has brain condition

Eagles DT told he has AVM day after suffering seizure at practice Condition may require surgery

One day after he collapsed to the ground and began convulsing, Mike Patterson received some troubling news, news that could put his season and NFL career in doubt.

Patterson, who suffered a seizure that lasted four minutes during Wednesday morning's practice, has been diagnosed with a brain condition that may require surgery, according to Eagles trainer Rick Burkholder.

As of Thursday afternoon, Patterson remained at Lehigh Valley Hospital in Allentown, where tests indicated a brain condition called arteriovenous malformation, which is the tangling of blood vessels near the skull. It is usually treated with surgery or radiation.

Out of a possible 96 regular season games Mike Patterson has played in since the Eagles drafted him with the 31st overall pick in the 2005 NFL draft.

Burkholder said that Patterson and the Eagles are still evaluating potential options.

"In medicine today, there's tons of options," Burkholder said. "It would be foolish to speculate what's going to happen with Mike. I'm certainly not going to speculate whether Mike will return to football, now, this season, or next season."

For now, it's unknown how the condition will affect Patterson's career long-term.

Burkholder also said Patterson was likely born with AVM and that Wednesday's seizure had nothing to do with the player's football activity.

"It just so happened to be at football practice," he said. "It could have happened anywhere. It just happened here."

UFC 133 comes to Philadelphia

Fight slate depleted, not wiped out ◗ Evans, Ortiz highlight show in Philadelphia ◗ No titles are on the line, though ◗ Tickets still available

Booking bouts for a high-profile event like Saturday's UFC 133 in Philadelphia is simple.

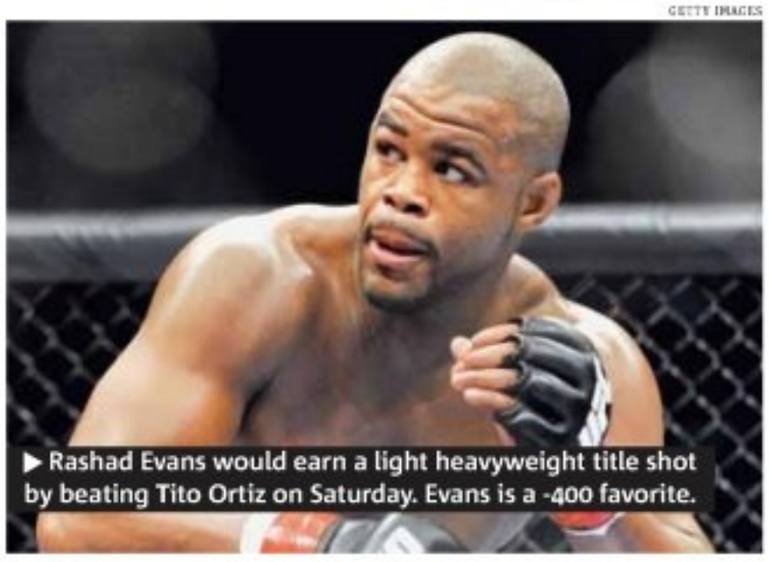
Actually having both fighters step into the ring? That's another story, entirely.

This weekend's pay-per-view card was supposed to include Jon Jones defending his light heavyweight title against Rashad Evans, Antonio Rogerio Nogueira facing Rich Franklin and Vladimir Matyushenko fighting Alex Gustafsson.

Due to an uncanny spate of injuries, none of those bouts will actually take place.

"It wasn't difficult putting [the fight card] together," UFC president Dana White said at Thursday's prefight news conference. "It was difficult keeping it together."

GETTY IMAGES



▶ Rashad Evans would earn a light heavyweight title shot by beating Tito Ortiz on Saturday. Evans is a -400 favorite.

Instead of a title shot against Jones, Evans will be meeting last-minute fill-in Tito Ortiz. Both are former light heavyweight champions; White said Thursday that Evans will definitely receive a title shot with a win, though the resurgent Ortiz would likely have more work to do.

Evans and Ortiz met at UFC 73 in 2007. That fight ended in a draw after Ortiz was docked a point for grabbing the cage.

On Thursday, both emphasized the differences in their current styles, as compared to that bout.

"I'm a different person mentally, physically, emotionally," Ortiz said.

He's been in six fights — five wins — since UFC 73, though injuries to himself and opponents have kept him out of the ring since beating Rampage Jackson in May 2010.

On the air Saturday

Prelims: 8 p.m., Spike TV
Main card: 9 p.m., PPV

Undercard

There's more than Evans-Ortiz II on the injury-ravaged fight card.

- Veterans Vitor Belfort and Yoshihiro Akiyama make up the co-main event. Akiyama is just 1-2 in the UFC, but all three bouts earned Fight of the Night honors.
- The most meaningful fight Saturday matches up-and-comer Rory MacDonald against veteran gatekeeper Mike Pyle. Just 22, MacDonald has lost only once.

NOTICE – SEPTA ROUTES 204, 205 AND 306 PUBLIC HEARINGS

The Southeastern Pennsylvania Transportation Authority (SEPTA) will conduct a public hearing regarding proposed changes to Routes 204 and 205 and the discontinuance of Route 306.

Proposal

Routes 204, 205 and 306 are funded by the Pennsylvania Department of Transportation (PennDOT) under the Congestion Management Plan for the U.S. Route 202, Section 300 reconstruction project. These route projects are monitored by a Congestion Management Committee that includes PennDOT, the Federal Highway Administration (FHWA), the Delaware Valley Regional Planning Commission (DVRPC) and the Chester County Planning Commission. The services are under private contract, currently all held by Krapf's Coaches, Inc.

Route 204 operates between the Paoli Train Station and Eagleview Corporate Center. Under an Experimental Order, SEPTA made two minor adjustments to the route to include service on Constitution Drive in Eagleview and to the Uptown Worthington complex in East Whiteland Township. If approved, these changes would become part of the base route.

Route 205 is approved to operate between the Paoli Train Station and the Main Line Industrial Park in East Whiteland Township. Under an Experimental Order all service was discontinued between the Commons at Great Valley and the Main Line Industrial Park; some trips were extended to Phoenixville Borough; and service was added to the Uptown Worthington complex. The purpose of this hearing is to make these changes a permanent part of the base route, while retaining alternate routing to Main Line Industrial Park, as needed.

Route 306 is approved to operate between the Main Line Industrial Park and the Brandywine Town Center in New Castle County, Delaware. Under an Experimental Order, service between Parkway Center in West Goshen Township and Brandywine Town Center was terminated. Service was also added to the Uptown Worthington complex. Due to continued low ridership and project funding limitations, the committee agreed to allow SEPTA to discontinue the route. If this is approved by the SEPTA Board, the service would terminate at the close of business on November 18, 2011.

Tariff Documents

A copy of the proposed Routes 204, 205 and 306 tariffs, which provide a detailed description of the proposed changes, is available for inspection at SEPTA's Customer Service Office, 1234 Market Street, Lobby, Philadelphia, PA 19107-3780. The proposed changes with maps are also on the SEPTA website at www.septa.org/notice.

Public Hearing

A public hearing will held on Friday, September 9, 2011, 2:00 PM at:

Robert G. Struble Room
Chester County Library and District Center
450 Exton Square Parkway
Exton, PA 19341

If you require a sign language interpreter at the public hearing, please make your request known, in writing, to SEPTA, Service Planning, 1234 Market Street, 9th FL, Philadelphia, PA 19107-3780, no later than Thursday, September 1, 2011.

Sending Comments

If you cannot attend the public hearing, but wish to enter your comments, your written comments will be entered into the record and be afforded the same consideration as if you attended and testified at the public hearing. All written comments should be received no later than Monday, September 12, 2011. Send your comments to SEPTA, Service Planning, 1234 Market Street, 9th FL, Philadelphia, PA 19107-3780.

If you wish to submit comments by e-mail, you may do so on the SEPTA website at www.septa.org/notice. A form to submit comments will be available.

Lights on for resilient Lidge

Lidge fights way back from injuries, inconsistencies • Notches 100th save in fill-in role • Could be valuable bullpen piece down the stretch

In 2008, Brad Lidge was untouchable.

As the Phillies were en route to their first World Series title in 28 years, Lidge was on his way to a 48-for-48 performance. He converted all 41 saves in the regular season and then went 7-for-7 in the postseason, including Game 5 of the World Series.

Lidge dropped to his knees and reached toward the sky in celebration after the Phillies downed the Tampa Bay Rays.

However, in the three years since, Lidge hasn't quite been the same. One injury after another has hampered him.

But the right-hander has never lost confidence or his will to compete. While Lidge isn't likely to regain his role as the team's closer, he showed he can still fill in when needed, notching his first save since last season in Wednesday's 8-6 win at Colorado. The 1-2-3 frame included a strikeout, and Lidge's slider flourished.

"I feel very good physically," said Lidge, who has a 2.45 ERA in five appearances this season. "My slider has been pretty good. Now, I'm trying to get the velocity up on my fastball. I'm very encouraged overall."

Lidge had eight rehab appearances at Class-A Lakewood and Double-A Reading. Some outings were better than others.

The point was to regain his control while facing live hitters.

"It's been a long road back," Lidge said. "I want to do everything I can to help the club. Whatever Charlie [Manuel] and Rich [Dubee] need from me, I'll do it. We have the talent to win a title. That's the goal. I want to be part of it."

Lurie: Birds are 'far from a dream team'

Just like Andy Reid, Jeffrey Lurie isn't buying into the Eagles' "dream team" moniker just yet.

In his annual state of training camp address to the media, the Eagles owner erred toward caution on all of the hype surrounding his team regarding its recent high-profile free agent and trade acquisitions.

"The only dream team I know about is the Green Bay Packers," Lurie said in reference to last season's Super Bowl champions. "We dream to become as good as the Packers and hold that trophy. They're the dream team."

Lurie was responding to backup quarterback Vince Young's "dream team" comment, as well as defensive end Jason Babin's "I feel like we're the Miami Heat ... except we win the last game" message posted on Twitter. Both players recently signed free agent deals with the Eagles.

"Yeah, those were players that don't know us that well. We're about as far from being a dream team as you can be. We're playing catch up."

Still, Lurie does expect his team to be in the hunt for the Lombardi Trophy.

"I think we'll compete," he said. "There's no question we had a strong team last year, and we should have quite a better team this year."

Tiger sharp in first action since April

In his first fill round of golf since the Masters in April, Tiger Woods looked much like the Tiger of old on Thursday and not the one currently ranked 28th in the world.

Woods shot a 2-under-68 in the opening round of the WGC-Bridgestone Invitational in Akron, Ohio. Tiger has won Bridgestone six times in the past.

It was Woods' first appearance on the PGA Tour since withdrawing from the Players Championship on May 12 with Achilles and knee injuries he first suffered at the Masters.

When asked what he learned about himself after competing for the first time in nearly four months, Woods replied, "The amount of progress I made in my golf swing. I was hitting proper shots out there, and the distances I was hitting the golf ball, I hadn't hit the ball like this. This was fun. It was pretty nice."

Woods is tied for 18th after one day at Firestone Country Club, six strokes behind Adam Scott, who coincidentally is using caddie Steve Williams, Woods' longtime caddie whom he recently fired. Above all, Tiger just seemed happy to be back out there again.

"I hadn't really gone at it until today," he said. "Today was just, let's go play and put everything else aside." METRO
